

PROTECT OUR DRINKING WATER

Community concerns are rising about potential contamination of our drinking water from the Hilcorp Energy/NRG oil project near Vanderbilt.

The project uses carbon dioxide to mine oil, raising concerns about adequate safeguards to prevent potentially toxic wastewater from migrating into the surrounding groundwater.

The Texana Groundwater Conservation District is asking for more stringent monitoring efforts than Hilcorp and partners previously have offered.

If you are concerned, email an Appeal for Support to your elected and regulatory officials.
